

Canton Land Trust Challenge (2021)

This year's Challenge is dedicated to the memory of Fred Feibel (1925-2020)
Fred served as President of the Canton Land Conservation
Trust from 1980 to 1982 and on the Board from 1976 to 2020.

While the trails on Canton Land Conservation Trust property are suitable for use in all four seasons, there is no doubt that many see warm weather as a time to get back outdoors and onto the trails.

The Canton Land Conservation Trust encourages you to take the Canton Land Trust Challenge, a series of nine hikes whose total distance is just over 23 miles. This is not a race; the goal is to simply complete the challenge at whatever pace you choose to visit some of the lovely trails in the town of Canton.

If you completed the challenge last year, this year's challenge has three main changes:

1. The Sweetheart Mountain leg is slightly longer as it now includes the recently reclaimed blue with white dot trail.
2. The Sun, Wind and Woodland leg (SWW) is slightly shorter, as the new route incorporates three brand-new trail segments (Taylor Hill Road extension, Taylor Road bypass, Taylor-Moses), and skips over Barbour Woods spur, although ambitious hikers can do that section as well.
3. Addition of the brand-new Swibold trail. Very short, but worth the visit.

All these trails are in whole or in part on Canton Land Conservation Trust properties, with one of the legs of the challenge including several trails at the Roaring Brook Nature Center.

These hikes have a combined elevation gain of over 4,000 feet. To put this in perspective, if you have climbed some of the mountains in New Hampshire, climbing Mt. Washington by one of the most popular routes (Tuckerman's or Jewell trail) results in an altitude gain of about 4,200 feet. As another perspective, there is a race up the stairs in the Empire State Building. That climb has an elevation gain of 1,050 feet, so you would have to repeat that climb almost four times to match the elevation gain of the Canton Land Trust Marathon Challenge. If you were to do Mt. Everest by the South Col route, you would have an elevation gain of 13,756 feet, so this challenge is almost one third of Everest (without the reduced oxygen).

Take these hikes in any order you choose, although those new to hiking might wish to start with the shorter ones and build up to the longer ones.

You can complete the hikes either by following the text-based, turn-by-turn instructions listed further down, or you can use the AllTrails app on your phone. You don't need to download the app, and you do not need a dedicated QR reader, you simply point your phone at the QR code as if you were planning to take a picture, and it will prompt you to click on a link. You can also go to:

<https://www.alltrails.com/lists/canton-land-trust-challenge>

or you can the QR codes for each of the legs of the challenge. Using the AllTrails app gives you driving directions to the trailhead. While on the trail, the app identifies your current location with a blue dot.

Use the form on the next page to document your progress. The Land Trust will members who create the challenge in the newsletter and with a hat. This year, the challenge starts whenever this notice is sent out, and ends September 22, 2021, making it a summer challenge.
